

Trees in the Urban Environment

Dr. Tom Smiley

Urban trees are vital to the health of our communities. These treasures are prone to a variety of problems including water stress and soil compaction.

Based on his research on urban trees and the Western Red Cedar, Dr. Tom Smiley will provide information about the extent of these issues; and describe methods to improve the health of the trees in our cities.

